

Persona: Retail Investor (Young Professional)

Ethan Miller is a 29-year-old software engineer and early-career investor who actively manages his personal investment portfolio. He is comfortable with technology and prefers data-driven tools that help him understand market behavior and portfolio risk. He wants simple visual dashboards, scenario simulations, and clear Value-at-Risk insights to support smarter investment decisions. However, he finds most financial tools either too complex or too fragmented. His primary goal is to use RippleWealth to simulate market stress scenarios, understand downside risk, and make safer long-term investment choices.

